Dear colleagues

This week A Current Affair profiled a patient story on a triple organ transplant at The Prince Charles Hospital, that gave a recipient a chance of life. Last night I attended the Jamieson Trauma Institute Showcase and enjoyed listening to projects which continue changing the landscape of trauma care and recovery outcomes from major injury. These services also help shape policy, and future advances in medicine and care.

These are just two examples of Metro North Health's exceptionalism.

Whatever role you're doing, you're an essential part of the team. Clinical staff provide direct care to patients, but supporting them are administration staff, cleaners, food services, security officers, tradespeople, translators, scientists, and many other specialists in non-clinical fields who are all doing your parts to ensure patients are getting the care they need at the right time.

So today, the first Friday in March, is Employee Appreciation Day. On behalf of the Metro North Board, I'd like to let you all know how valued you are as members of the Metro North Health team.

Thank you to every member of the Metro North Health team doing your bit to help our organisation deliver safe, high quality and sustainable patient care.

Please be kind to each other and remember to be kind to yourself.

Best wishes,
Bernard
