Dear Team,

Tomorrow, we recognise ANZAC Day.

This national day of solidarity marks the anniversary of the first major military action fought by Australia and New Zealand forces during the First World War. We also pause to honour the many courageous men and women who have and continue to serve for our countries in conflicts around the world.

I'm sure many of you have family members or loved ones who you will remember on this day.

At TPCH, chaplain Judy Burt will host a service tomorrow morning (details below) and we will play a message over the PA system for staff, patients and visitors.

Lest We Forget.
